

If the live streaming duration is shorter than the uploaded video duration, will the words [Video playback completed] appear after the video finishes playing?

When the video duration exceeds the set live streaming duration (for example, the video duration is 1 hour and 15 minutes while the live streaming duration is 1 hour), the video will stop playing once the live streaming end time is reached.

Note:

1. If students stay in the live streaming room without exiting when the live streaming duration ends, they can watch the video normally without being able to drag the progress bar.
2. If students exit the live streaming room before the video finishes playing when the live streaming duration ends and then re - enter, the video will continue playing from the current time point without the ability to drag the progress bar.
3. If the instructor refreshes the page during the live streaming on the web - based platform, the video will continue playing from the current time point, and the playback cannot be dragged.

After the live streaming duration ends, when students enter to watch, it will be the same as the state of watching the replay after a normal live streaming ends. As shown in the following figure Please see the progress bar display after playback:
